Eric Michael - we are looking for rototillers as we want to flip the infield and leave it sit for the off season and then re-address after the thaw. Drew Reynolds says he will check with Brower as he did it in the past for the league.

Frank Berta reports that Under-Armour was supposed to take over uniforms but at the President's meeting he found out that they "bit off more than they can chew", so Majestic stepped in to bail them out and Nike is now the apparel provider of MLB. Majestic and all its holdings were then bought by Fanatics, so we should be good for the upcoming season and no uniform shortages.

Frank also reports that we are switching from the current leaguelinup driven website and that it is currently under review, main reason is that eventually all Little League teams will be forced to use the Blue Sombrero drive website now owned by Dicks Sporting Goods, but ultimately it allows us to pay one less bill as leaguelineup would potentially cost the league $190 and the new site costs nothing. New site will handle background checks, as well as, registration.

Frank says we are looking to move tryouts up one week, but it is still uncertain.

Announced that this Wednesday 12/5 at 7pm the rules meeting will be held, anyone that wants to propose a new rule it must be submitted in writing to himself or the league in some form prior to the meeting so that it can be emailed to the league for review.
